

Meenu Sharma

I am working as a Research Associate at Commonwealth Educational Media Centre for Asia (CEMCA). I am working in a project centred on Open Educational Resources titled “Teachers’ Attitudes, Motivations and Conceptions of Quality and Barriers to OER in India”.

I completed my Master and Bachelor degrees in Psychology from University of Delhi. I have recently submitted my doctoral dissertation in Adult Education (Non-Formal Education) at the National University of Educational Planning and Administration (NUEPA), New Delhi. My PhD research focuses on Quality of Life aspect of Neo-literates. In this research work, Quality of life has been conceptualized by three major components: Empowerment, Sustainable Livelihood, and Life Skills, which have come straight from field work. The major key variables studied in this study are rural poverty, livelihoods, life skills and women empowerment by literacy attainment. Certainly, it is helping me to understand the contemporary social relevance of psychology and its contribution in other disciplines.

I also have good knowledge of quantitative and qualitative research techniques and data analysis. In addition, I have experience in both theoretical and practical aspects of psychology and education. I have published book reviews, chapter, articles and research studies in these areas. I also have given several presentations at National and International conferences in India as well in Overseas. Besides, I do owe Membership of Academic Societies which have been working for education and society.
